In argument plaintiff's counsel said, "she knew at the time the car struck the plaintiff that the plaintiff was injured." No objection was made to this argument, and we find no objection in the record to the argument complained of. The trial court was justified in submitting the question of contributory negligence to the jury. The third specification of error is that the trial court erred in admitting into evidence the picture of the bowling alley because it was introduced by the plaintiff, for the purpose of impeaching her own witness, to show that she knew the lane line in the bowling alley, and in allowing her to testify that she was familiar with the bowling alley because she had bowled there. We believe the court was correct in admitting the picture into evidence. The plaintiff introduced the picture in evidence. She testified that she knew the lane line. Under such circumstances the picture was admissible to impeach her testimony, even though it was an admission of a party to the action. 24 C.J.S. We find no error in the admission of plaintiff's testimony about her familiarity with the bowling alley. Affirmed. CATES, P. J., and ALMON, TYSON and HARRIS, JJ., concur.
