Paul Ryan (R-Wis.) a standing ovation by cheering for his plan to replace the Obama-era DACA program with a more conservative DACA program. The House Republican leadership's plan, which the Trump administration has endorsed, envisions an amnesty process that is much more stringent than Obama's initial DACA program. ADVERTISEMENT Top GOP donors are praising Ryan's plan because it will mean more restrictions on immigration, particularly from the Americas. "In my view, I think this is the best plan that we can put out to the American public," said Robert Kagan, a foreign policy adviser to ex-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton Hillary Diane Rodham ClintonJoe Biden looks to expand election battleground into Trump country Biden leads Trump by 12 points among Catholic voters: poll The Hill's Campaign Report: Biden goes on offense MORE. "If you don't want to have more immigrants, it's OK to say that. It's not OK to say you're going to let in a certain number of people and you'll set up a green card system so you can decide who you want
