Enhance Your iPod Touch With Automated Light Effects. What is this feature and how does it work? This feature allows you to customize your iPod touch with many different light effects by simply using the accelerometer. While using Auto Lights, you can program the iPod touch to light the car's interior as well as the steering wheel and ambient lights as well. What if you don't have a car? You can still take advantage of this feature as it is compatible with most vehicles. It's easily programmable so the lighting effects can be extremely customizable for both fun as well as for practical situations. Just remember to set the iPod Touch's home screen to its screen light mode. There are many reasons why you might want to unlock your iPod Touch with Automated Light Effects. It's safe to say that if you have a vehicle, a night light, iPod Touch, or a smartphone, you've wanted to use it to enhance the experience and the fun during night time. Auto Lights greatly adds to the life of the iPod Touch as its light will not flicker because it's not using a battery but the one from the accelerometer. Using Autolights will not drain the battery faster even with continuous usage. How it works Auto Lights depends on one main thing - the iPod touch's accelerometer. Just go to the iPod Touch's home screen and start the application. There, you will be asked to select and calibrate the accelerometer and you are ready to go. Auto Lights then allows you to add light effects for your car's interior, steering wheel, and the ambient lights. The application can display animated light effects in a 3D with circular or elliptical motion. These effects

I have a Nikon D810 with the 24-70mm 2.8 prime lens. Sometimes it happens that when zooming in with the lens aperture to f/3.2 or smaller, sometimes an area is black (at least nothing is coming out). (left side is with f/3.2 and the zoomed in; right side with f/16 and the zoomed out) It seems that the bokeh highlights in this area do not appear. (It happens for a short moment as a very minimal highlight appears.) Why does this occur? A: Two possible reasons, one being the "Bokeh highlights" as you call it, could be the in-focus area being so dark it doesn't appear. If it's in focus, light will be reflecting around on any area that's not in focus. The other possibility would be that you might need to use a tripod or mount 09e8f5149f
