SketchFlow SketchFlow is a free online vector drawing app with a variety of tools from which you can choose what to use. You can draw vector shapes, convert a raster to a vector, align, change properties, and even create artwork from scratch. The vector art program enables you to add color to vector art, and you can create artwork from your sketch in four color depths: RGB, CMYK, Web, and Bitmap. The program can save as PDF or SVG. The program is flexible and doesn't require a purchase to use. It's perfect for a hobbyist or a pro who's just started to use vector art. InDesign This popular Adobe program is used to create magazines, calendars, books, and other design documents. InDesign supports just about every type of print media from newspapers to billboards. InDesign can handle multiple fonts and provides a large library of vector and bitmap artwork and buttons, and it can link graphics to text within a page. The program is highly versatile and with the ability to manipulate text, columns, and various layout capabilities, it's used for corporate design projects as well as creating single-page greeting cards.

CorelDRAW CorelDRAW is a vector-based graphics program that has several drawing modes and is compatible with the latest versions of Windows and Mac OS X. Other features include being able to crop an object, rotate, transform, and apply a 3-D effect.

Corel PaintShop Pro This program has many visual-editing tools that enable you to modify and create images, color them, and enhance them. PaintShop Pro is a commercial program that allows artists to work with photos and vector art.

CorelDraw This is an older version of CorelDRAW that has some of the same tools as CorelDRAW.

IrfanView This freeware program for Windows was developed in 2000 to provide a free photo editor for Windows users and has since been downloaded more than 90 million times. It has many features that include the ability to resize and rotate images, correct the size or color of an image, and crop or rotate shapes. The program has more than 300 filters to manipulate an image. You can also draw lines and text. The program supports more than 200 file formats. Corel Photo-Paint This is a premium version of CorelD

Shoppers Spotted On Streets Of Indianapolis On Friday Thursday, April 27th 2016, 2:45 pm By: News 9 The Indiana State Police and Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department Traffic Homicide Unit have been investigating fatal crashes that occurred in the area. Traffic was backed up at West 17th Street and New York Street, and into the Lake-Clifton neighborhood, on Friday. A mother was killed when her car was hit by a semi truck. Police said it happened near 19th Street and Grant Avenue, just after 4 p.m. Investigators with the State Police said the mother was on the wrong side of the road and the vehicle crossed into oncoming traffic. Police said the woman was taken to Eskenazi Hospital where she was pronounced dead. In addition, two teenage girls were involved in a crash on Madison Street. It happened around 3:30 p.m. One of the vehicles involved was a minivan. The girls were not hurt in the crash. Police are still looking for the second driver. Police are still investigating the incidents.

Howard/IndyStar) Police said about 3:30 p.m. one of the vehicles involved in the accident was a minivan. The girls were not hurt in the crash. Police are still looking for the second driver. Police said the van was traveling south and the car was traveling north in the right lane. The crash occurred near the intersection of I-65 and Shadeland Avenue, police said.

As a result of the crash, northbound lanes were closed for several hours and motorists were redirected onto the southbound lanes. The accident occurred just before 4 p.m. First responders were on the scene, including EMS crews.

"That might be the busiest I've ever seen it, especially with the crash on the interstate," driver Brian Herr said. Herr was driving southbound on I-65 when he said he heard what sounded like a car hitting the van. "I was looking in my rearview mirror and it was coming towards me, so I hit my brakes and then I started honking my horn," Herr said.

What's New In?

[Protein profiling of pig muscle at different post-mortem periods]. In the frame of proteome research on porcine meat, a simplified proteomic approach consisting of SDS-PAGE and on-gel trypsin digestion was used to determine the protein composition of two muscles of a normal pig at different post-mortem periods (1, 2, 4 and 6 h). The proteome of the two muscles (longissimus lumborum and vastus lateralis) significantly changes with post-mortem time but basically follows the same pattern. The number of protein spots detectable by 2D-PAGE (150 and 240 protein spots for vastus lateralis and longissimus lumborum, respectively) increases with post-mortem time. After 6 h post-mortem, 40 protein spots were only detectable in the first gel and 30 in the second gel. The number of detectable protein spots not only increases with post-mortem time, but also with muscle. For the first time a significant difference in the post-mortem time-related protein composition of two muscles could be demonstrated. Our results show that the study of muscle proteome profiles is not only a valuable tool for meat quality assessment, but it also helps in the
