Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell's "Make America Great Again" tour has hit a roadblock, as California has issued 50 subpoenas for information from the Republican Senate leader's past. The list of 50 questions, which can be found here, is a real eye-opener, as it comes from a group of a few different organizations that have either been impacted by recent GOP attacks or groups that support the legislation. For example, organizations like Planned Parenthood, the Human Rights Campaign, and the League of Conservation Voters have all been affected by the radical platform the Senate majority leader has presented for the upcoming election in November. From the very beginning, Senate Majority Leader McConnell has done his best to avoid Senate hearings and interviews on the health care legislation as he blocked access to Democratic senators. Now, the Senate leader is being accused of not only trying to stop the repeal and replace bill, but also to do everything he can to help the worst aspects of the legislation pass through. "I fear it
