A Little Introduction about WinPcap

There is a WinPcap GUI called NetWmix (WinPcap GUI is a standalone application and you can use it as an emulator for WinPcap.

WinPcap is a packet capture library that is widely used in the industry, and you can use it to build your own custom software, it also used for analyzing network traffic. When you want to build your own capture software, then you might want to use WinPcap, because it's easier to use than other packet capture libraries (like libpcap). WinPcap is the core component of the Windows Network Monitoring package. It is also the core component of several other applications such as Sniffer, Analyzer, Filter, Filter Capture Engine, pfFilter, ethermon, TraceView, Spanning Tree Protocol/Router etc. You can use WinPcap as a capture engine for NGS Sniff (which is the capture engine of NGS, NGS is a free and open source packet sniffer). NGS Sniff is a small and easy to use program that allows for packet captures using various methods – raw sockets, WinPCap and the Microsoft Network Monitor packet capture engine. NGS Sniff is easy to use and is completely self-contained. It takes no third party libraries, and requires no installation on the target system. NGS Sniff is in the x86 directory on the NGS-3.2.3.0_setup.exe or NGS-3.2.3.0.zip download. You may have installed a different version of NGS Sniff on your system. In order to fully remove it, please run the removal script. Note: If you get an error message about the Program Files folder not being accessible, please refer to the table below and try to create a folder and run the removal script for that directory instead:

Bet Their Heart on Proven QB
AKRON, Ohio – There's a good chance the University of Akron football team will be knocking on the door of a bowl game at the end of this season, depending on the success of last night's game at Kent State. Coach Terry Bowden has no illusions, though, and he made that clear last night in his postgame press conference when he said the players aren't going to come to him and tell him the team is good enough to play for a postseason bowl. "I don't believe it," Bowden said. "I would believe it if they believed it themselves. I have no evidence they believe it. But I'm not going to believe it." Bowden's plan has been all along to "buy a little time," and he said he's not worried whether the team's performance against Kent State might hurt that goal. He is confident the program is better than it was a year ago and that he'll get the program back on track. "We've got the confidence in this program that we'll continue to get better," he said. "I think we've got some players on the team that are really good players. This was a tremendous effort on the field. I think when we get together we can give a better effort." The team's first task will be to play that better effort against Toledo next week. Bowden said he has some reservations about whether his team can actually pull out a win in the hostile environment at Ryan Field. “I don’t think we’re going to be able to do it,” he said. “I don’t see a victory.”
