In particular, the sensitivity and selectivity of the receptor molecules is being studied in vivo using imaging. This approach is complementary to the classical behavioral approach and gives information not accessible from the latter. Thus far, our results show that sensitivity and selective features of odorant receptors can vary with time, as well as in different olfactory receptor neurons in different animals. The structure of odorant receptors and their ligands has been identified. Two sets of receptors (Sn and Sl) are differentially expressed in different olfactory receptor neurons with different odorant receptor combinations that gives rise to primary and higher olfactory centers the selectivity of the receptors is unique for each receptor cell type, that is characteristic for each receptor gene. Moreover, we are using in collaboration with the NIDDK

Along with the "Battle for Mosul" campaign, the Iraqi forces are also preparing to launch "Safeen" operation in Nineveh province. Iraqi elite forces and the Popular Mobilization Units (PMUs) are moving north toward the militants' last stronghold in Ninewa province. The operation to liberate Mosul from ISIS began on October 17th, 2016. The Iraqi government declared on December 21st that the battle for the central city was complete. However, the terror group continued to conduct deadly attacks across the territory it occupied in Mosul, as well as the Nineveh province. On December 11th, the Iraqi military discovered a cache of military weaponry in eastern Mosul including 20 Grad, three RPG, five AKM and two BKM weapons. Moreover, ISIS gunmen on several occasions attacked areas near Tikrit and Kirkuk where hundreds of civilians were killed or wounded. Over 160 airstrikes on Raqqa were also conducted by the Syrian Democratic Forces, SDF. With the declared liberation of Mosul, the PMUs which are led by the Iraqi Hashd al-Shaabi (Popular Mobilization Units) are also attacking other areas under control of ISIS that remained in Mosul. The militants have put up a fierce fight that they had not expected. The Iraqi military, backed by the air forces, has been able to inflict a heavy blow on the terror group's positions, but they have not been able to drive them completely out. On December 11th, the Hashd al-Shaabi announced that 23 militant groups had been officially evacuated from the eastern part of Mosul while those who didn't surrender their weapons and left Mosul were handed over to the law enforcement. According to Hashd al-Shaabi, about 70 militants have been killed in the northern city. Meanwhile, Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi announced that ISIS has been fully driven out of western Mosul. The operation to liberate the territory of Kirkuk and Hawija is ongoing. The Iraqi forces also discovered a car bomb belonging to the Takfiri group near the al-Anbar canal and two improvised explosive devices. The US has conducted an average of 100 airstrikes per day against ISIS in Iraq and Syria since August 8th.The invention relates to an objective lens system with different functions and more particularly to an objective lens system with a scanning function and a light condensing function.
