Alt-Rock Spark That Life for Two New Albums Breezy and soaring, the new album from Kacey Musgraves, Golden Hour, is a stark contrast to the way her first two albums – Same Trailer Different Park and Same Trailer Different Park, Pt. 1 – came out. Golden Hour is back to the small, intimate venues that mark her live shows. “I play lots of festivals, but I’ve grown to appreciate playing my own shows,” says Kacey. “I think you can write a little more about stuff. I don’t have to think about it, I can really celebrate it.” Aside from her upcoming appearance as one of the headliners at the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival, Kacey also will be playing a handful of shows throughout the U.S., including one on June 17 at the Blue Rock Center in New York City. In addition to performing, Kacey is also promoting the new album on the road. On tour, she’ll play her new hit, “Follow Your Arrow.” Like her new album, “Follow Your Arrow” is a declaration of self-trust and independence. “I feel like I can say anything,” Kacey says. “I might be saying, ‘I’m just real,’ but we’re all in the same mess.” Despite Musgraves’ new album, she’s been known to lean toward alt-rock and indie bands in the past. Although she was influenced by them, she was also looking for the freedom to write her own songs. “It just freed me up,” says Kacey. “There were certain things in my life I was not able to write about. In my life, I’m a little free with my emotions and feelings, but I’m also a little control freak so this is how I’ve written in the past. It’s safe.” She adds, “When I started writing songs, I found that I had to come up with something new and creative, and it’s a much different place from where I was when I started. “Even though some of the songs on the new album are familiar, I’ve never written something like this before. It’

Q: AngularJS - Setting form field value from other source than model In AngularJS is it possible to set the value of a specific form field from outside of the form model? For example, say I have this: And this: `{{person.firstName}}` What I want to do is set the value of `person.firstName` in the `mainCtrl` from the `html` on the main page. I'm curious if it is possible with a directive, something like: `module.directive('oneWay', function() { return { restrict: 'A', templateUrl: 'directive.html', scope: {}, controller: function() { this.setPersonFirstName = function() { // need to set a value here }; } }; });` A: Yes, you should be able to. The most straight forward approach would be to get a reference to the controller instance and set it: Controller: `var app = angular.module('app', []); app.controller('mainCtrl', function($scope) { $scope.someValue = "Lorem"; });` HTML: `Some value: From there, you can use it in your directive's link function: Link: app.directive('directive', function() { return { restrict: 'A', templateUrl: '`
