The various options and controls on a saved image enable you to do additional image editing and printing. The first thing you need to do is change to the Print dialog box, as shown in Figure 1-19. Related Links PHILADELPHIA – Three players dressed for the New York Red Bulls in last weekend's 3-2 victory against the Philadelphia Union were sent off within 24 hours, but one – Thierry Henry – was quiet, and mostly undeserving, of the red card he received. Henry started in the 74th minute and was ejected from the game after an altercation with Philadelphia goalkeeper Zac MacMath. MacMath then proceeded to play the full 90 for Philadelphia, which is something that is pretty rare, especially considering that he was ejected from last week's game against the Red Bulls. "That's the first time that I've ever seen a goalkeeper come in and play from being ejected," Red Bulls head coach Jesse Marsch said after Monday night's training session. "I think it speaks volumes for what Zac's done for the team." The Red Bulls were coming off a 5-0 win at the Red Bull Arena against the Vancouver Whitecaps FC, when they sat with only 10 men in the 57th minute. "Yeah, and he's been fantastic for us, I would say. He's done very well this year in a lot of games, especially considering he's injured and he's had to wait," Marsch said. "He's come in and gone and started and given us a big boost." Marsch said that after the match, the Red Bulls approached the MLS Disciplinary Committee to have the red card rescinded. "And I think they did," Marsch said. It's an interesting twist for Henry, who often gets sent off when he can't be sent off. Last week's ejection could be his best game of the season. "It feels good," Henry said after the match. "The only problem with me being ejected is that it happened after the game. Maybe I should have stayed until the end and got them a goal." In fact, Marsch said Henry was pretty much playing like that anyway. "Thierry Henry is a good player. He's a great player," Marsch said. "He's normally a little more selfish than he was tonight."
