Looks like the second half of the 24K Magic collection is right around the corner. According to a booking agent, Drake will do a 3-hour set tonight in New York City. Tomorrow morning, Drake is scheduled to perform in Manchester, New Hampshire. The 3-hour set in NYC is at the Barclays Center (25 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn, NY 11225), and is the final North American show from the current Drake tour. Although Drake's "mixtape" series is now three seasons long, he won't be adding a fourth volume to the collection. No official word from Drake yet, but you can probably expect Drizzy to cancel the "Stay In" tour and release a standalone album sometime soon.

New designer drug 2,5-dimethoxy-4-bromoamphetamine. 2,5-dimethoxy-4-bromoamphetamine is a previously unknown, designer drug. The structure was elucidated by mass spectrometry and NMR spectroscopy. 2,5-dimethoxy-4-bromoamphetamine induces a dopamine supersensitivity of the striatal binding sites measured with [3H]N-propylnorapomorphine. For this reason, 2,5-dimethoxy-4-bromoamphetamine represents a new designer drug, which should be added to the list of amphetamine derivatives known to induce dopamine supersensitivity of its binding sites.

Hetero oligopeptides as probes of peptide/transport protein interactions: solvophobic control of peptide recognition. A series of 11 N-acetyl-L-alanine-L-leucine-L-lysine-D-alanine-D-leucine oligopeptides was synthesized, each with a single pair of side chains that differed in both their charge and hydrophobicity. The relative efficacy of these pairs of side chains in the formation of dipeptide complexes with the transporter alamethicin and the ionophore valinomycin was determined by a combination of affinity chromatography and electrospray ionization mass spectrometry (ESIMS) techniques. A combination of the effects of the peptide side-chain charge and hydrophobicity (solvophobic effects) on peptide and transporter interactions was demonstrated for these series of oligopeptides. More hydrophobic side chains were more efficacious in
