The Democratic Party candidate for president was pushed on his stance on the separation of children from their parents if they cross the border illegally. KAMALA HARRIS: I believe that if I am president of the United States, I will do everything that I can to ensure that our border is just as strong as the border that exists between this country and Mexico. We need a wall to do that. But do you support the separation of families? HARRIS: I'm not going to get into specifics of my private conversations. But let's be clear: all children deserve to grow up in a safe and healthy home with their parents. And anyone who says that we should be doing less to protect and assist children in America or any other country in the world from this vice is not someone who I will ever support. I feel like my life as a blogger is finally coming to an end. I've been blogging for the past two years and with over 10,000+ views on my blog, I've finally decided that it's time for me to move on. I've been blogging about my DIY lifestyle and life as a Web Designer here on the MindBody Green blog. I've had a lot of great and awesome readers who have let me know that they find my posts helpful. I've also taken note of the fact that some of my readers have also jumped on the Social Media bandwagon. Some of my blog readers have started to follow me on Twitter, Facebook and LinkedIn. (I am an avid Twitter user, that's for sure. I even have a 'tweeter tag line'. You can ask me about it, ha ha!) I haven't even received any feedback on Instagram yet, so maybe I'll give that platform a try one of these days. My website MindBodyGreen.ca will remain online, but for the most part, that blog will be read only. Blog readers who wish to continue the conversation with me, can still email me at hello@mindbodygreen.ca. I will still share travel tips, DIY tips, and tips on finding a work life balance. My next blog post should be published late this week. On the home front... This past winter has been such a busy one. If you're an avid coffee drinker, you have probably tried all of these things and have a favourite: "for the love of coffee" "coffee with a side of love" "coffee with a dash of love" "I love my coffee this way.
